MISSION STATEMENT

The goal of this publication is to disseminate applied research into a secure and sustainable future for humanity. It will be pursued through the following aims:

a. Provide a forum for interested experts to foster interdisciplinary research in broad human security issues such as track two diplomacy, ethnic conflict, terrorism, religious extremism, human rights, demographic change, population health, human ecology, sustainable economics and related areas.

b. Inform academics, professionals, and the general public about developments in the fields of human security, new research projects, trends and discussions, and newly published monographs.

c. Encourage a multidisciplinary approach to issues that have traditionally been viewed as mostly unidisciplinary. This is to be achieved by regular feature contributions in which specialists describe a pressing issue in their field to specialists from other areas. Special emphasis is placed on the integration of human security issues into higher education and schooling.

d. Maintain an appeal to a wide readership with both high academic standards and close relevance to practice, meeting international standards of excellence.
